Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2, 5-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ryan et al. (hereinafter Ryan – US 6,684,189) in view of Chodes ("Life insurance as a hidden cash Source"; Gary Chodes, Tony Natale. The Secured Lender. New York: Jul/Aug 1999. Vol. 55, Iss. 5; pg. 16, 3 pgs).

Re. Claim 5 Ryan discloses a) key-man; obligating the borrower to periodically make a premium payment on a life insurance policy on the life of the borrower [see entire document particularly - Abstract; Figure 3s, 17-21, 27; col. 2 lines 10-42];

b) arranging for at least a portion of the premium payment to be invested, in at least one investment vehicle, the investment vehicle having a preselected estimated rate of return [col. 2 lines 10-42; col. 31 lines 16-25; col. 46 lines 1-10];

c) calculating an estimated cash surrender value of the life insurance policy over time based on the portion of the premium payment to be invested in the at least one investment vehicle and the preselected estimated rate of return [Figures 28; col. 46 lines 20-28];

e) receiving the cash surrender value of the policy at a preselected time in full satisfaction of the loan, wherein the preselected time is based upon the estimated cash surrender value [Figure 30 and associated descriptions].

Ryan explicitly does not disclose the life insurance policy naming the lender as beneficiary, the life insurance policy being cashable for a cash surrender value; and d) periodically applying the proceeds of the investment vehicle to the insurance policy to increase the cash surrender value thereof. However, periodically applying the proceeds of the investment vehicle to the insurance policy to increase the cash surrender value thereof is well known to one practitioner in the art of investment. For example long term stock holders reinvest the dividend back to let their investment grow in case of retirement or tax free bonds, they do not pay tax either.

Chodes discloses the life insurance policy naming the lender as beneficiary, the life insurance policy being cashable for a cash surrender value [see the NPL document – 4 pages]. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to combine the disclosures of Ryan and Chodes to provide a life insurance for a key-man for a business who signs the loan/mortgage on behalf of the company and in event of the death of the key-man, the lender should be able to recover his money.

Re. Claims 2 and 6, Ryan explicitly does not disclose wherein the investment vehicle produces returns which are permitted to build on a tax-free basis and periodically calculating an actual rate of return of the at least one investment vehicle, and obligating the borrower to make additional premium payments if the actual rate of return of the at least one investment vehicle is less than the estimated rate of return. However, these features are well known, For example long term stock holders reinvest the dividend back to let their investment grow in case of retirement or tax free bonds, they do not pay tax either [see above example] and in rebalancing/reallocating the investment investors periodically reallocates his/her investment to get better return.

Re. Claim 7, Ryan discloses creating a surplus [col. 46 lines 28-50]. Ryan explicitly does not disclose paying the borrower investment surplus amounts if the actual rate of return of the at least one investment vehicle exceeds the estimated rate of return. However, this is business choice to keep the money are Ryan discloses in escrow of pay the fund back to the owner. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to modify the disclosure of Ryan and include these feature to stratify the accounting practice of the company.

Re. Claim 8 Ryan discloses periodically calculating an actual rate of return of the at least one investment vehicle, and arranging to have the borrower make additional premium payments if the actual rate of return of the at least one investment vehicle is less than a preselected lower rate limit [col. 78 line 1 through col. 79 line 18].

Re. Claim 9 Ryan discloses receiving the cash surrender value and the death benefit of the life insurance policy in the event of the death of at least one individual, and discharging the loan in the event of the death of at least one individual [Figures 28, 34, 63].
